CAMUS VSOP BORDERIES

"From the Camus family's own vineyards"

Story Camus is one of the largest winemakers in the Borderies region. Borderies is the smallest of the six Cognac sub-regions, covering only 5% of the total area of the region. The clay soil of the region adds vanilla and violet aromas to the cognac. Camus Borderies is made solely from the region's wine distillates, and the grapes for the cognac are mainly from the Camus family's own vineyards. Jean-Paul, the father of the current owner, Cyril Camus, takes care of the family vineyards.

Producer Camus – Le Grande Marque – Cognac house was established in 1863. The house remains entirely owned by the Camus family and is currently led by the fifth generation. The current owner, Cyril Camus, is actively steering the company forward, particularly targeting the Far Eastern markets, while still upholding traditional values. Camus ranks as the world's fifth best-selling Cognac brand and holds the top position as the best-selling brand in Extra Cognacs.
